POST AMNESTY EXPERIENCE IN LATAM
Spanish
Wealthy Latam families continue to need holding and succession structures for investments outside of their home country. Our panel of local experts will discuss structures that offer tax deferral and succession planning, and will focus on how such structures should be administered and reported in an ever changing regulatory and compliance environment.

Andrea Nogueira, Nogueira Pegas Advogados (Brazil)

Dr. Camilo Maruy Nordlander, Estudio Rebaza, Alcazar & De Las Casas (Peru)

Mauricio Jesus Cano del Valle, Brook y Cano (Mexico)

WHAT ABOUT THE ASSETS THAT DIDN'T GET TRANSFERRED TO THE TRUST?

We dedicate many resources to discuss and establish trusts and private foundations for succession of the family's principal assets. Many other important assets like art, jewelry and automobiles, however, are owned in personal name outside of the trust or foundation. Succession of these other assets in a cross-jurisdictional setting may be excessively difficult. Our panel of experts discuss the planning opportunities and pitfalls when the assets of the deceased owner are in a jurisdiction other than their home residence.

AML EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION: INTERACTION WITH TAX AND OTHER GOVERNMENT AUTHORITIES

Historically, the system for combatting money laundering has relied on cooperation between governments and international agencies. More recently, the system for the prevention of tax evasion has introduced FATCA and CRS. In this presentation, Armando Lara Yaffar and Daniel Ortegon analyze how these two systems operate, and how they may increasingly overlap, between LatAm jurisdictions and globally.

FINDING A NEW HOME FOR YOUR COMPANY

Simon Beck explores the growing trend to re-domicile (continue) companies from traditional "off-shore" to "on-shore" jurisdictions, especially to OECD countries. Mostly, it is about tax. But there is quite a bit more to it than that.

Simon Beck, Baker McKenzie (USA)

WAR STORIES MADE USEFUL: HOW THE TOP COMMON LAW JUDGMENTS AFFECT US ALL

It might be thought surprising – and possibly obsessive – how often common law courts revisit fundamental principles concerning fiduciary relationships, trusts, inheritance and the conflict of laws. The last year has been no exception but the widening differences between those jurisdictions that have broadly traditional rules and those that have cutting edge innovations are coming into ever sharper focus, often in some truly extraordinary scenarios. This session will explore not only how the differences have been manifested but their practical implications for clients and advisers across the globe.

REQUIEM FOR CLIENT - ADVISOR CONFIDENTIALITY

English

The CRS Mandatory Disclosure Rules (MDR's) which have recently been proposed by the OECD for adoption in all CRS jurisdictions are designed to discourage advisers from advising clients how to limit the CRS reporting profiles of ultimate end-users of cross-border structures. They also are designed as a surveillance measure to discover, through the reporting mechanisms, techniques for such reporting limitation so that perceived loopholes can be closed. The OECD's proposals have retrospective effect, are destructive of legal professional privilege and create criminal sanctions for advisers who fail to inform on their clients in these circumstances. William Ahern explains the MDR's using practical examples and argues why and how practitioners can successfully oppose their introduction in their home jurisdictions.

William Ahern, Ahern Lawyers (Hong Kong)

USTAX REFORM AND LATAM INVESTMENTS

English

The U.S. tax law passed in a rush at the close of 2017 is the biggest restructuring of US tax laws in 30 years. Attorney Megan Worrell (N.Y.), will review the impact of the new law on US inbound investment from Latin America (and the world), especially in the area of real estate investments for personal and commercial use. If you haven't already reviewed your clients' structures in light of the changes, you'll want to attend this presentation!

Megan Worrell, Duane Morris LLP (USA)

CRS: THIS IS IT!
